Saudi Banks – Q2 2009 preview

- Q109 results were characterized by strong revenues, continued build up of provisions and steady performance in investment portfolios as the absolute size of the portfolios was right-sized. We expect bank profits for Q209, to be lower by 10.5% y-o-y and down 0.9% on a q-o-q basis. Our expectations of a small drop in q-o-q net income is due to a combination of continued build up of provisioning for losses on one side coupled with some stabilization in non-interest income due to the recovery in markets seen in the first two months of the second quarter. We believe interest income will be steady, as banks counter flat loan growth by re-pricing risk and passing on some rate increases to borrowers.

- In addition, although the banks have benefited from tremendous growth in deposits from government entities, the growth in loans to the private sector has not materialized. This has had the impact of improving the liquidity situation in the country - falling SIBOR rates and alleviated loans/deposit ratio at the end of May to 80%. From a balance sheet perspective, we expect a growth in total assets, primarily due to the growth in foreign assets of the banks which have risen by 17% since the end of 2008. We continue to expect the banks to be risk averse and their reluctance to originate loans into the private sector is reflected in the negative growth of loans in 2009.
- Regulators continue to take steps to sustain and spur borrowing in the market including - repatriating foreign assets to increase money supply into the country to support local projects, reducing the reverse repo rate offered to the banks to 0.25% and authorizing a market for debt securities to help diversify funding sources.
- Although there seems to be sizeable exposures of the Saudi banks to the Ghosaibi and Al Saad groups, the true extent and scope of the problem has not yet been clarified by the individual banks in Saudi Arabia. We believe the impact this quarter will be smaller and major repercussions to the reserves and NPL's will probably not be seen till the second half of the year.
